

INTO THE WEB - A journal about the future of the web

The Web is the subject as well as the method of the study of Web Science, that is being taught at the Johannes Kepler University and the University of Art and Design in Linz since 2011. The great and at the same time challenging thing about it is the fact that members of all disciplines - business and art, sociology, informatics and law - discuss it here in one place.

Into The Web is a journal that contributes to this discussion, brought to life together with students of the Science of the Web. Consisting of image series, interviews, visual eye candies, and standard articles it portrays - in all its diversity - not only the broad range of ideas, questions and initiatives, but also lets us understand the number of ways to view, use and describe it in all its abundance.
